

ABOUT AUTHORS.

The incomes enjoyed by some of the Popular Modern Writers.

George Eliot is said to have worked harder on "Romola" than on any of her other books. In her own words: "I began it a young woman—I finished it an old woman." And yet but about seven months were consumed in the work. Some authors have lived long. Alexander von Humboldt lived to be over eighty. Goethe was over eighty-one when he died. Kant lived his quiet life for just eighty years, the quietest and most uneventful life known to a man of genius. Titián died at the age of ninety-nine. Michael Angelo lived to be more than eighty. Among the royal persons who have become known as authors are Queen Victoria, King Oscar II., of Sweden, Dom Louis, of Portugal, the Shah Nasr-od-Din, of Persia; Queen Elizabeth, of Roumania, Prince Nicolas, of Montenegro; Dom Pedro II., of Brazil; King Louis II., of Bavaria, and several others. The novelists are at present dominant among us, so far as popular acceptance and remuneration go. It has been lately ascertained that Mr. Tennyson makes $40,000 a year by his poetry. Walter Besant, who was seduced from the career of a college Don by the fascinations of the novelist's art, earns more for any one of his romances than Carlyle earned in the first ten years of his literary career. Charles Reade averaged, we believe, $25 per page for his writings. Herbert Spencer's remuneration exceeds five shillings per page. Matthew Arnold's imaginative powers earn him an income at least four times smaller than Wilkie Collins' imagination can command. A shoemaker's son, a few years ago, wrote a short comic story which tickled the public taste; his success was so immediate that the public—represented by the publishers—were paying him $5,000 a year for whatever he chooses to write.—Christian at Work.

LINCOLN'S DEATH.

The House in Which the Assassinated President Breathed His Last.

It is a three-story brick in a block, with a pair of stone steps and an iron railing reaching to the front door over the basement. In its wall has been sunk a marble slab on which is printed the words:

A. LINCOLN
Died in This House
April 15, 1865.

The house is now owned by a German editor named Louis Schade, who has his printing office, I think, in the basement. At the time of the assassination this house was known as the Petersen House. It was occupied by a very respectable family of that name. They were good, sensible people, not very well-to-do, who owned a large house and made something by renting rooms to strangers. John Matthews, a comedian, who was a great friend of John Wilkes Booth, had rooms in this house, and his room was the one in which President Lincoln died. A few nights before the assassination John Wilkes Booth occupied Matthews' room, and it is a curious fact that he slept in the same bed upon which the man whom he afterwards murdered breathed his last breath. It was said by some that Andy Johnson was sworn in here at this house. This may be so, but it is generally believed that he was sworn in at the Kirkwood House.

The room in which the President died was a long, narrow one in the center of the building, with few windows, if any, and with paper made of great stripes. Mrs. Lincoln was not at his bedside when he passed away, and the pictures generally given do not represent the true scene of the death-bed.—Carp, in Cleveland Leader.

"Some of the hackmen of this city are a sealy set," grumbled a traveler at the central depot yesterday morning. "My wife and I got in from Chicago late last night, and I asked one of the Jehus outside the depot where we could find a good hotel. 'Try the Continental, it isn't far off. Take you there for a dollar,' said he. I jewed him down to seventy-five cents, and we got in. He drove about ten minutes, turned seventeen corners and finally left us at our inn. Perhaps my dander wasn't up when I found out this morning that the hotel is next to the depot."—Buffalo Courier.

Protecting Their Rights. Probably no concern in the country has adhered more strictly to the determination to achieve success by the liberal use of printer's ink than the Brown Chemical Company of Baltimore, Md. Starting business about five years ago, they have expended over $1,500,000 in the preparation and circulation of printed matter, more than half of which has been paid for newspaper advertising. All this has been done to make known the virtues of their celebrated Iron Bitters.

As might be expected, very large sales have resulted from this enormous outlay, making it about as staple in many drug stores as flour at the corner grocery. Like all good things, it has been largely imitated. They claim there are not unscrupulous manufacturers who cater to just this sort of trade, and some dealers so lacking in principle, that because a greater profit can be made on fraudulent than on genuine medicines, are willing to deceive the public by pushing off Iron Tonic Bitters and other Tonic Medicines in place of genuine Brown's Iron Bitters. The company, finding these frauds practiced so extensively and all other means inadequate, have at last determined to try a little cold law to put a stop to them. Suits for heavy damages have therefore been commenced against Non-Secret Medicine Manufacturers, for selling Iron Tonic Bitters, and other Tonic Medicines in place of genuine Brown's Iron Bitters. A drugist in Baltimore, for selling Iron Tonic Bitters with his name on the label, which medicine was made by Non-Secret Medicine Manufacturers, and also claimed as an imitation. The Brown Chemical Company deserve success in these suits, as it is high time those who have built up large enterprises to success, should be protected from those who live not by their own genius and effort, but by copying and counterfeiting things that have been made standard and valuable by others.

There are some things harder to keep than a diary. A three-dollar pocket-knife, for instance.

There Shall Be No Alps. When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said: "But, sire, remember the Alps." To an ordinary man, the Alps would seem simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded: "There shall be no Alps." So the famous Simplon pass was made. Disease, like a mountain, stands in the way of fame, fortune and honor to many who by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery might be healed and so the mountain would disappear. It is specific for all blood, chronic lung and liver diseases, such as consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), rheumatism, eruptions, tumors, swellings, liver-worms and kindred complaints.

It is difficult thing to make the lens of a large telescope. It is also often a difficult thing when a man lends his head to get it back again.—Pacific Star.

The new advertisement on this page of Le Page's Liquid Gino warns everybody to beware of a deceiving bottle. The wise will buy Le Page's only. First, because they get double the worth of the money in quantity; and second, because Le Page's is a tried and not-famous-waiting glue. It is used by the Smithsonian Institute and other Government departments, and by expert manufacturers, such as the Pullman Palace Car Company, as well as by people generally. Its popularity is based on its merits as a glue, and untold manufacturers can produce glue that will do more than Le Page's. It is a New Orleans, under a block of Georgia pine, one inch square, butted, registered 1,613 pounds on a reliable testing-machine before parting, they will be unable to overtop its pre-eminence.

Poisoned by Scrofula. The taste of scrofula in the blood should be got rid of or serious consequences may result. Consumption is undoubtedly scrofula of the lungs, and in its early stages may be cured by purifying the blood and building up the system. For this Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled. It also cures scrofula when it appears in the form of running sores, boils, hives, the neck, catarrh, or in any other manner. While it purifies, Hood's Sarsaparilla also vitalizes and enriches the blood. Give it a trial.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for about three months. Before that time my blood was in a terrible condition. After using it for about one month my appetite was better and my general health greatly improved. For a medicine as good as Hood's Sarsaparilla too much can not be said." J. L. Lusk, Hughes House, Putnam, Ct.

"I have been troubled with scrofula for three years, having running sores on my leg. After taking one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I am getting well rapidly." A. A. Kiani, South Bend, Ind.
